

Since our founding in 1982, Komen has invested more than $2.8 billion in mission. This includes more than $889 million to breast cancer research, making Komen the largest nonprofit funder of breast cancer research outside of the U.S. government.

Komen's financial stewardship and the depth and breadth of Komen's mission means that millions of women are alive today, with a better quality of life and more options for breast cancer treatment than ever before. The need remains very great, however, with one in eight women still facing a breast cancer diagnosis in her lifetime.

This year, Komen spent 81 cents of every dollar invested in mission, marking the eleventh straight year we spent more than 80 percent on mission programs.

- Audited financial results show that Komen invested more than $216 million into all mission-specific programs in FY2015. This included $41 million invested in research programs in FY2015, and more than $175 million invested into community outreach, which includes screening, education and treatment programs for low-income and uninsured women nationwide.
- Komen funded 125 research grants in FY15, growing our research investment to more than $889 million since our founding in 1982.
- Komen paid for more than 320,000 breast screenings in 2014 for low-income and uninsured women, and provided financial aid and psychosocial support programs to more than 13,000 women, while distributing more than five million educational resources.
